

Summary of Plaintiffs' evidence of counterfeiting

In 2010, HPFS India leased the equipment to TATA for the Commonwealth Games.

Inspira imported the equipment to India; TATA returned the equipment in 2011. Defendants did not inspect it for authenticity before or after the lease.

Inspira did not provide original importation documents with serial numbers of the imported equipment to Defendants despite multiple requests.

HPFS India sold one quarter of the equipment to ICT in December 2011 as genuine "H3C," the rest to TT Global in 2012.

Incarceration and criminal investigation of ICT's sales associates; seizure of the transceivers; H3C's and Defendants' statements to the PSB that the seized transceivers were counterfeit based on fake trademark logos; holding up RMA refund to ICT while demanding release from Individual Plaintiffs (2013).

Defendants concealed test results from the PSB and ICT; secretly instructed TT Global to destroy its transceivers due to their "questionable" nature and origination; discussed paying TT Global $200K for destroying them (2013).
